WATERFORD FLAT

All Parish Service—Holiday Guests—
Special Service.

Christmas at Willis Learned's at Waterford. Mr. and Mrs. Chester Rowe spent Christmas with Mrs. Rowe's parents at Harrison.

Mr. and Mrs. Neeson has been in South Paris a few days.

Richard Files, who is a student at the American International College, Springfield, Mass., is spending the Christmas holidays at his home.

LOVELL

There were Christmas exercises at the Village School, also a nice Christmas tree for the scholars and each one had a remembrance. There were many of the parents present beside others who enjoyed it very much. The teachers went to their homes for a week's vacation during the holidays.

Colds are prevalent in this vicinity. Carleton Nevers killed a beef cow, Friday, also slaughtered a pig. Guess he will be served for a while.

Mr. Dallenzer of Washington, D. C., who has a summer residence at Center Lovell showed his Christmas spirit by giving a $5.00 bill to two families at Center Lovell to be divided among their children for which they were very pleased.

Mrs. Ralph Littlefield and daughters, Pauline and Marilyn visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Briggs, Wednesday, also motored to Fryburg on business.

Mr. G. Briggs and wife were callers also last week.

Leo Wells, Randolph Andrews, Harold Watson, C. Nevers and Everett Seavey are working on the road.

There is about two feet of snow here. R. A. Littlefield helped L. S. Briggs kill a beef cow Friday.

As S. R. Andrews came across the flat in Prayville he saw two crows, we are wondering whether they were waiting to get their ton per cent at the bank or to wish us a Merry Christmas.

Frank and Billie Shaw of Fryburg are spending their Christmas with their grandmother, Jennie Emery and sister, Miss Anna Shaw.

NORWAY CENTER

Brown Buildings Damaged by Fire—Young People to Have Social.

A fire at the home of Mrs. Dora Brown on Christmas afternoon caused plenty of excitement and badly damaged the house. It started around the chimney and by the time the pumper arrived had gained considerable headway. With plenty of water at the new dam, recently built by C. W. A. workers, the firemen saved the barn and stable without damage.

There will be a social at the vestry, Thursday evening, Dec. 28. The young people will arrange a program and refreshments will be served.

Mrs. Anna Thurston went to Rumford Sunday, to spend the week with her sister, who is ill.

Irvin Brown is helping Arthur Holman build several houses at the lake.

Mrs. Raymond Bennett of West Bethel spent the week end at H. A. Knightly's. Miss Doris Hunt is at home for the Christmas vacation.

FROM MY WINDOW

Eva L. Shorey

From way out in California comes a letter from an oldtime friend, saying she has received clippings from the Advertiser of my sketches with reference to some of the happy days in which she had a part. She asks me many "Do you remember," all of which bring back some of our activities of years gone by. You can just be sure that I do! And here is a Happy New Year for all my friends, far and near!

As I look out over a picturesque snow storm this morning and remember what a picture the illuminated tree just across the street is in the evening, the thought occurred to me, why not encourage the custom which is gaining favor, of having a living tree to make more beautiful each Christmas season? There have been wonderfully attractive illuminations in this section this year as all over the country, no doubt, many of them unique and artistic in design and coloring. One which illustrates the living tree idea is a cedar in front of the Walter A. Hawkins' home on Highland Road, which was decorated with a lovely shade of blue lights. This was in addition to other effects on the hillside, including garlands of fir, wreaths, and Merry Christmas across the front, and the Star of Bethlehem at the top of all.

Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins lived for some years in Austria, where the Star was always the chief feature of the Christmas decorations. Many have planted small fir, spruce and other ornamental trees of this kind.

Why not arrange one or two in a convenient place for Christmas decorations, and thus decrease the cutting down of so many trees, which soon find their place in the trash pile?

The bright message of cheer which has gone out from these lighted trees, or other illuminations, has brought courage to many who have had little Christmas, but that which has come to them from others.

This display of colored lights is not a material help, of course, but is something which we cannot explain, it cheers the spirit, it helps us to pass along the brotherly and sisterly courage and enthusiasm which often is greater than material help, as it tends to inspire courage in others.

We sometimes get chain letters, telling us on no account to break the chain or some disaster will happen to us. While this doesn't mean very much, there is a lesson to be gained from it. Don't allow yourself to break the chain of good wishes, good cheer and courage, which may be extended to you, but pass them along to the next one, and no matter how discouraged you may have felt before, you will find yourself to be the chain of good wishes, which responds. So, be a living Christmas tree during the coming year, with the blue of happiness shining out, like the cedar tree to which I referred in the foregoing.

Pre-Revolutionary Documents

Date Back to 1706 in Plymouth, Mass.

Many attending the Grange fair at Welchville have been interested in a collection of Colonial documents placed on exhibition by Mrs. Charlotte S. Hunting of Welchville. But that exhibit was a small part of her valuable legal papers, yellow with age, from the old court house at Plymouth, Mass.

They were given to her husband, the late J. W. Hunting, when a member of the fire department there and brought to Maine when the family settled on a farm twenty odd years ago.

The oldest court document bears the date of November 1706, written in a cramped hand and resembles hieroglyphics. It appears to be a court order for a Constable Ebenezer Richmond to attach goods for a certain debt.

A petition dated at Plymouth in 1730 was for the boarding out of a child of Lydia Jackson of Plymouth, the man involved being the reputed father. Document was signed by the three selectmen who asked for two shillings per week as a just recompense for the support.

On June 29, 1731, William W. Barnes and Richard Cooper signed a petition to the Majesties Justice of the General Sessions of Plymouth County for Samuel Clark to cease heading off the water at the grist mill on Plymouth town brook, as to flow considerable of the meadow land and ground of complainants. Citation was to an act made in this Province, the 12th year of Queen Anne's reign for upholding and regulating mills. An appended note states that Clark notified by Josiah Cotton, clerk, to appear in court.

Sometime in 1731 printed forms appeared, thus doing away with much illegible scratching of the goose quill. One legal paper in the collection was a summons for the constable to bring Wm. Raymond and Joseph Ashley, yeoman, before the court to answer to a writ of Habeas Corpus, George, By the Grace of God, of Great Britain, France and Ireland, King Defender of the Faith, etc." The rest of the form is practically the same as used in legal practice today.

On November 6th, 1733, J. Matthew Allen of Binghamton, County of Plymouth Province of Massachusetts Bay, bound himself in the sum of 43 pounds to Nicholas Lever of Kingston. Payment must be in good Bills of Credit on the Province of Massachusetts or current lawful Silver money of New England.

Seth Stetson petitioned the selectmen of Hanover, Mass., for right to retail spirituous liquors out of doors in said town for one. His request met with approval and the town fathers passed a recommendation saying he was sober and suitably qualified and provided for such employment as provided by the constitution and Laws of the Commonwealth. This paper bears the date March 28, 1792.

"OLD-SALT" TALES

By CAPTAIN IRA PERKINS

(Copyright.)

Adrift in Warm Waters

THE most dangerous part of running arms into the islands used to be that there were spies everywhere. The very man to whom the contraband arms and ammunition were consigned might turn spy before the cargo ever reached him.

The captain was seated on the low veranda which ran the length of the lifeboat station and the boys were gathered close about him.

He went on talking: "Conditions were pretty bad when I made my first voyage, on one of these gunrunners. It was the clipper Scorpion out of Frisco. Her papers read 'planes in cargo' and her destination was set down as 'Bombay, India'."

"The food was good and the pay was high and, although we all knew there was something in the air besides legitimate sailing, it mattered little to us what it might be. We were all young."

"The course of the Scorpion was volcanic islands which thickly stud that part of the sea. We managed to keep the island between ourselves and the gunboat until night. Then we slipped away under cover of darkness."

"There were other close calls before we finally came in the first port where we were to debark a part of our stock. Most of it had been got safe ashore when, all at once, a fight broke out among the natives. In no time at all they had the rifle cases open and had seized a lot of cartridges. Soon the spit-sput of distant firing came clearly into hearing. Jets of blue smoke and flame flashed from the woods back of the village. Our boats rowed back to the Scorpion's side at a much faster pace—as you can imagine—than they had gone ashore. We hove up anchor and got under way as fast as it could be done."

"Just as our screw began to churn the muddy harbor water, we were quite taken aback by the appearance of one of the natives who climbed hand over hand up the ship's rope ladder which, during the excitement, had not been hauled in. The fellow appeared half-seared to death. His eyes twitched open and shut spasmodically, and he was trembling in every limb."

"He explained something about a new chief and his fear of being tortured and perhaps eaten. The thing didn't look just right, but the fellow seemed harmless enough and, in the haste of getting away from that place, no further attention was paid to him."

"The throat of the harbor was narrow, very like the neck of a bottle. As we coasted through it, the shores were not over 300 yards away. There was a splash. Several of us ran to the lee rail. The native had dived over and was striking out for shore with the long, steady stroke of a powerful swimmer."

"It was late afternoon when we steamed away from the island. As darkness fluttered down upon us we had made about 20 knots to the eastward and were out of sight of land."

Haynes Noyes is spending his school vacation with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Z. H. Morse, in Webster Brook Dist.

E. H. Boynton's son from Massachusetts was here over the week end.

REDUCING PRODUCING, BUT IT DON'T REDUCE

Said an Oxford County farmer, "I'm glad the government is helping the farmer. They put up the price of grain and that helped the farmer in the West who had a lot of little pigs and bigger ones to feed."

MORE ABOUT SALADS

Between seasons there is such a comfortable feeling that lettuce we have always with us; other greens may come and go, but this is always dependable.

Vegetable Salad.—Cut into small pieces five stalks of celery, one small bottle of sweet pickles, two green peppers, one medium-sized onion, one-third of a cupful of capers, two large lettuce hearts, one cupful of cooked green beans, four small cooked beets and one small can of anchovies; mix with one tablespoonful of vinegar, two tablespoonfuls of olive oil and one small bottle of stuffed olives, sliced.

Shamrock Salad.—Cut green peppers crosswise, choosing those which will give the trefol form, when sliced. Fill the halves after removing seeds and veins with a nicely seasoned cream cheese, pressing the filling in firmly. Chill, then cut into slices and serve with a strip of green pepper as stem.

Orange Salad.—Remove the peeling from oranges and as much of the white skin as possible, then cut into very thin slices, arranging them in overlapping slices on individual plates on lettuce. Serve with a nicely seasoned French dressing.

Prune Salad.—Arrange three or four stewed prunes, which have been drained and the stones removed, in nests of lettuce; sprinkle with chopped nuts and serve with any desired dressing. The prunes may be stuffed with nuts, cheese or a bit of tender celery.

This salad is especially nice with duck.

Southern Onion and Apple Salad.—Take a mild large onion, cut it into very thin slices, then into dice; mix with finely diced, good-flavored apple; add a good salad dressing and serve on lettuce. In any salad the vegetables should be cut fine, to be well seasoned with the dressing. Large chunks of apple, or of any fruit or vegetable, are never well marinated, neither do they look appetizing.

WHAT PRICE ARMS?

An elderly negro had been hired to dust off the works of art in a southern museum. At the end of his first day he was found by the overseer very much deflated near a reproduction of the familiar statue of Venus. "What's the matter, Sam?" he asked. "Job too much for you?" "No, sah," said Sam, "but Ah hopes yo-all won't think Ah busted this monument."

STAINS MAY EASILY BE ERASED AT HOME

Employ Reliable Methods and Act Promptly.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Most stains may be removed easily at home, provided reliable methods are known and a few simple precautions are taken. Prompt home treatment is necessary with some stains in order to save the article in question from being ruined, and in most cases it is desirable, since all stains are removed more easily when fresh.

The nature of a stain should be known, if possible, before its removal is attempted, since this determines the treatment to be adopted, the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture points out, if an unsuitable stain remover is used, the stain may be "set" so that its removal becomes difficult or even impossible. For example, if hot water, which easily removes most fresh fruit stains, is applied to stains containing protein, such as stains of milk, blood, eggs or meat juice, it coagulates the albumin in the fibers of the cloth and makes it extremely difficult to remove the stain. Similarly, soap, which aids in the removal of grease spots, sets many fruit stains.

The kind of fabric upon which the stain occurs also should be known. The method of treatment adopted depends as much upon the nature, color, weave, finish and weight of the fabric as upon the kind of stain. Cotton, linen, wool and silk each require special treatment in certain cases. Details of these various methods of handling different stains will be furnished by the United States Department of Agriculture.

In general, hot water should be avoided in treating unknown stains

WHY

Engagement Ring Has Become Recognized Institution

There wasn't much romance connected with the ring back in the Second century. B. C. when women first began to flash it on the fourth finger of her left hand as a symbol of betrothal. The engagement ring originated as a "safety ring" institution to hold fickle and forgetful man to his bargain from the time he made his first avowal of love until the wedding ceremony took place. As an ancient document reveals:
"There are many men who, forgetful of their plighted faith, defer the fulfillment of their nuptial contracts. Therefore there shall be a solemn declaration before witnesses and a betrothal ring given and accepted."

An old German formula reads:
"I give you this ring as a sign of the marriage which has been promised between us, provided your father gives with you a marriage portion of a thousand reitshalers."

During the Seventeenth century England chose to have the engagement ring adorn the thumb. The reason why English women wore them on their thumbs during the reign of George I, was because they were too large to wear on any other finger. The old Hebrew betrothal rings were almost as large as turnips, including in their superstructure reproductions of Solomon's temple or some other sacred building.

At one time the engagement ring consisted of three hoops looped together into what was known as a gimmet or puzzle ring. When the wedding took place one of these hoops was kept by the bride, one given to the groom and the third bestowed on an intimate friend who acted as witness to the ceremony.

ALL SEEK ROYAL WARRANTS

How Restrictions Have Been Placed on Privilege That is Much Coveted in England.

The most important of all commercial honors is the royal warrant, and naturally it is much coveted, says London Times-Breeze.
The first thing a warrant holder has to learn is that his privileges are limited and what these limits are. A royal warrant of appointment to the king means that a holder of this document is entitled to use the royal arms over his shop and on his note paper. He may not display the royal arms on a flag or use them as a trademark. If he uses them in his trade announcements he must be very careful to use the words "by appointment" beneath them. The arms should never be used without this wording.

The royal privileges are extremely carefully guarded, and if wrongfully used by the holder of a royal warrant, this would probably mean that the warrant would be taken away from the owner.

Very often, though, one sees the royal arms illegally used; for instance, it is no uncommon thing to see them printed on a poster at election time, or used as an inn sign. Even the use of the word "royal" is not allowed without special permission.

How Gold Prospectors Work.

Whether gold occurs as an alluvial deposit or in a "reef," it is traced by the prospector with the help of a gold pan. This is a shallow pan of light sheet iron with dish-shaped sides. When "panning" for gold, the prospector places the sand, soil, or crushed rock into the pan, and adds water to wet the substance to be panned. Then, holding the pan in a tub or stream of water, he adds more water, and by a shaking motion works the heavy minerals to the bottom of the pan. By a lapping process he ejects the sand until there remains only concentrates, among which the gold may be distinguished by its color and relative heaviness.

There are rich gold reefs which shed gold very sparingly, and sometimes the gold is locked up in pyrite or other minerals, from which it is liberated by roasting or chemical treatment.

How to See the Wind.

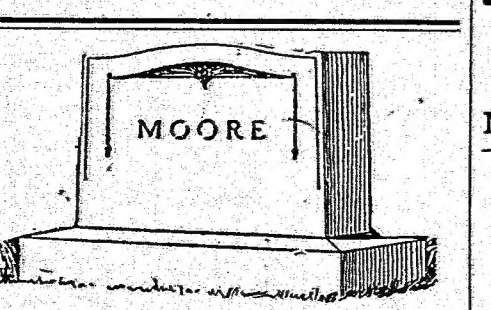

Choose for the trial a windy day, when the air is free from rain or snow. Take a bright, clean hand saw and hold it in your right hand, two feet in length and having a straight edge. Hold the saw or metallic surface at right angles to the direction of the wind. Incline it at about 35 or 40 degrees to the horizon and with the back up, so that the moving air, in striking the surface will glance upward and flow over the edge of the metal, as water flows over a dam. Sight carefully along the edge of the metal, at a sharply defined object, and you will see the wind or air waves pouring over the edge in graceful curves.

Unusually Endowed With Legs.

Following on the reports from Ontario of quadruped birds, comes a story from Tawatinaw, Alberta, where a farmer has a four-legged chicken. The two extra legs in this case seem to have grown just at the end of the backbone and across each other just under the tail. It is a healthy bird and will eat and fight with the rest of the brood.

Pig Retrieved Ring.

While digging potatoes a Prince Edward Island woman lost her wedding ring, which was too big. The pigs then began to dig in the garden to root for the potatoes that were missed. When the goats fattened and were butchered the woman's ring was found on one of the pig's teeth.

"BLACKED EYE SPECIALIST"

We recall seeing the above sign prominently displayed in a show window of an East Side New York establishment, a few years since. It should have read: "blackened" eyes instead, but the intent is obvious. The proprietor offered his services to cure injuries to the eyes, where there is done nearby, but there is a surprisingly large number of people who are not so fortunate as to be both eyes and hands. We would suggest that the upholsterer and the man who shagreen lawn mowers tell the world about it through our advertising department.

Forgetting about the blacked eyes, we seem to have discovered only one important deficiency—the lack of a typewriter repair shop. To this we will add nickel plating and bicycle repairs.

Will those who know of other lines or services, not to be found in Norway or South Paris, please suggest. We are anxious to make a complete list and then, by cooperation with our readers, see what steps may be taken to fill these needs.

no one in town to do upholstery work, but upon inquiry learn that that need is very well met. Something the same situation exists as to sharpening lawn mowers. There are a few lawnmowers about where this is done nearby, but there is a surprisingly large number of people who are not so fortunate as to be both eyes and hands. We would suggest that the upholsterer and the man who shagreen lawn mowers tell the world about it through our advertising department.

Forgetting about the blacked eyes, we seem to have discovered only one important deficiency—the lack of a typewriter repair shop. To this we will add nickel plating and bicycle repairs.

Will those who know of other lines or services, not to be found in Norway or South Paris, please suggest. We are anxious to make a complete list and then, by cooperation with our readers, see what steps may be taken to fill these needs.
